

The Glorious Conquest:

O R,

The Repeated Victory of the Right Honourable the Earl of Marlborough: First in the taking the City of Cork; Secondly, Kings-sale, and the strong adjacent Forts.

To the Tune of Valiant Jockey.

Licensed according to Order.

HERE is joyfull News come o'er
From the right gallant Irish Shire,
For the noble Earl of Marlboro
Hath obtain'd another Victory:
First the Town of Cork he's ta'n,
By a right valiant warlike Train,
Which did march under his great Command,
Valiant Souls, that fight with Heart and Hand;
Quite void of fear, they did appear,
Being all resolv'd the Coast to clear;
True Boys of Fame, to Cork they came,
Where they callid thorough Smoke and Flame.

Tannons roar'd like Thunder loud,
And the Smoak arising like a Cloud,
While we made the City Walls to shake,
Then the Toxes Hearts began to ske:
Thus when we the Breach had made
The Forces gallantly did wade
Thro' a Rver, then to storm the Town,
Headed by Commanders of Renown:
Brave valiant Boys, with warlike noise,
Put the scare upon the poor Dear-joye,
They could not stand our Armed Hand,
But surrendred to us out of Hand.

Brave valiant Boys, with warlike noise,
Put the scare upon the poor Dear-joye,
They could not stand our Armed Hand,
But surrendred to us out of Hand.

To Kings-sail we march'd with speed,
Our Army never fear'd to bleed,
But with valiant Resolution we
Were resolv'd to fight for Liberty :
Trumpets sounding all arow
We did with flying Colours go ,
When our valiant courage they beheld
Strait the Tories were with Horrour fill'd.
The Treagues did cry, Come let us fly,
For the Enemy's approaching nigh ;
Dey say they'll mall, and kill us all
By King William's Army we shall fall.

Then the Town they straight did fire
That they might by the Light retire ;
We immediately did quench the same,
Ay, and after that pursu'd our Game ;
For we followed to Old Fort
Teague swore he did not like our sport
For we play'd them such a Warlike Tunc,
Which did cause them to surrender soon :
'Twas rarely done, Old Fort won,
Seizing e'ry Man and Mother's Son ;
As they resign'd, the Gaols we lin'd,
Prisoners of War they lay confin'd

After this a pleasant Fale
Brought in our Frigates under Sail,
Which did fire on the other Fort
In a hot and most courageous sort :
The Land Forces up did ride,
Which did attack the other side,
And our Seamen scal'd the Wall's likewise,
Thus we did the Rebells there surprize,
Trumpers did sound, Great Guns all round
Made the very Elements resound,
Thus we subdu'd the Rebells rude,
And in time we shall the Work conclude.
